

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

- JEREMY BLACK, Department of History, University of Durham. Working on 18th-century history.
- JOHN BLAIR, The Queen's College, Oxford. Fellow in Modern History; Editor of Oxoniensia; working on aspects of Anglo-Saxon and medieval Oxfordshire.
- CHRISTINA COLVIN, 50 Plantation Road, Oxford. Editor of Maria Edgeworth, Letters from England (1971); research with the Oxfordshire V.C.H. since 1952.
- JANET COOPER, Victoria History of Oxfordshire, Clarendon Building, Oxford. Member of V.C.H. staff.
- J.A. DAVIES, Department of Archaeology, University of Reading. Completing Ph.D. thesis on barbarous radiates in southern England; studying Roman coinage in Britain, especially East Anglia.
- JOHN EDWARDS, 85 Jack Straw's Lane, Oxford. Retired solicitor, now a student of English pre-Reformation wall-paintings.
- J.R. ELLIOTT, Professor of English, Syracuse University, New York. Editor of Records of Early English Drama: Oxford University (University of Toronto Press, forthcoming).
- SARAH GREEN, Oxford Archaeological Unit, 46 Hythe Bridge Street, Oxford. Working on Roman pottery.
- BRONAC HOLDEN, 5 Crick Road, Oxford. Working on Oxfordshire hamlets and DMVs.
- GEORGE LAMBRICK, Oxford Archaeological Unit, 46 Hythe Bridge Street, Oxford. Field Officer; responsible for rescue excavations on the Oxford Blackfriars Priory and on other sites of various periods in the Oxford region.
- ARTHUR MACGREGOR, Ashmolean Museum, Oxford. Assistant Keeper in the Department of Antiquities, in charge of late Saxon, medieval and later collections.
- BARRY MCKAY, 29 Nethercote Road, Tackley, Oxon. Rare bookseller; Field Officer of Tackley Local History Group; author of Tackley to Tasmania.
- JULIAN MUNBY, 28 Alexandra Road, Oxford. Working on the history of Oxford and its buildings.
- STEPHEN PENNEY, Curator, Museum of Oxford
- JONATHAN SHARPE, Department for External Studies, University of Oxford. Archaeologist, working on Roman military settlements and on ecclesiastical buildings.
- DAVID STURDY, 47 Ulfgar Road, Wolvercote, Oxford. Architectural historian, working on Oxford buildings.
- KATE TILLER, Department for External Studies, University of Oxford. Staff Tutor in Local History; Editor of The Local Historian; working on church, chapel and social structure in 19th-century Oxfordshire.